Robin Leamy is Managing Principal for Mohr Partners, Inc. Northern California. Robin brings almost 40 years of corporate representation to his clients' benefit.

Commencing his real estate career with The Grubb & Ellis Company, Robin successfully represented some of the nation's largest property owners. Subsequently, he joined Langdon Rieder Corporation, a firm specializing in providing exclusively tenant real estate services. As a top advisor, Robin played an integral role in building the firm into one of the top Real Estate Service groups nationally, with the firm subsequently being acquired by CBRE. Following the sale, Robin migrated to Mohr Partners as Managing Partner for the Bay Area for ten years. Leamy then founded Leamy Realty Group, which operated for a decade as one of the premier corporate real estate services group in the country.

Rejoining Mohr Partner as Managing Principal has allowed Robin to apply the benefit of his vast experience to Mohr's growing client base. Robin has represented hundreds of corporate clients, including California American Water, Safelite AutoGlass, Microsoft, Luminar Technologies, Rabobank N.A., BevMo!, World Market, Oakley, Lennar Corporation, Old Republic Title Company, JM Manufacturing, Stantec Engineering, and NEC Electronics. Robin's strength is the integration of the Corporate Master Strategy into a practical Real Estate Plan.

Robin received a degree in Economics from the University of California, Los Angeles. As an undergraduate, Robin captained the swim team to a national championship. Following his undergraduate studies, he continued an athletic career that culminated in an Olympic Gold Medal. Following the Games, he received his Master of Business Administration degree from UCLA's Anderson School of Management.
