EDUCATION

- Kent State University
Bachelor of Science, Advertising

Jennifer Syx serves as Managing Director, Business & Economic Incentives for Mohr Partners, Inc., based in the firm's Cleveland office. In her role, Jennifer collaborates with the economic development and incentives practice while also leading efforts to expand it into a full-service platform across North America.

An industry veteran, Jennifer has a proven track record of securing tax credits, grants and other incentive opportunities for private-sector occupier clients seeking to enhance their investment dollars and maximize their capital investments.

She spent more than two decades as an economic development officer for U.S. municipalities before transitioning to the private sector, where she has represented companies in negotiating mutually beneficial incentive packages.

Jennifer holds a Bachelor of Science degree in advertising from Kent State University.
