Garet Tomlinson is a Director at Mohr Partners, Inc., where he works alongside Managing Principal Stephen Hemphill in the Dallas, Texas office. An experienced business development leader, Gareth rejoined Mohr Partners after leading strategic revenue initiatives for Hemphill's team from 2019 to 2024. He will continue to focus on working with private equity executives and CEOs at growing healthcare, life science and industrial companies across the country to manage and achieve their strategic real estate objectives.

Throughout his career, Gareth has held a range of business development positions. Before returning to Mohr Partners, he served as Vice President of Global Sourcing and was a Principal at PGB Group, commodities import company focused on supplying the construction industry. He has also worked as Director of Business Development for Excel Machine Racing and as Technical Communications Director for North America at Alpinestars USA.

Gareth's strengths include relationship-based selling, technical communication, public speaking, media relations, business strategy and sales forecasting. He also has a significant background in international logistics.

He combines strong interpersonal skills with a broad technical background and is an effective presenter, especially when communicating complex technical subjects to large audiences. He has led national sales and marketing operations, achieved notable sales growth across the US and Canada and successfully managed high-profile promotional events.
