Aidan Wicklow is an Associate in Mohr Partners' Chicago office, working as a corporate real estate advisor alongside market leader and Managing Partners Chris Bargowski and Brandon Glick.

In his role, Aidan supports the Chicago office's business development efforts by identifying opportunities, building client relationships and contributing to the firm's growth across various sectors locally and nationally.

Before joining Mohr Partners, Aidan gained commercial real estate experience through internships with Sterling Bay and CBRE. At Sterling Bay, he developed exposure to acquisitions, financial analysis, development, leasing and market research while learning how institutional real estate teams evaluate investments and long-term asset value. Previously, at CBRE, he supported business development and leasing efforts through targeted market research, prospecting and direct outreach to senior business leaders.

Aidan also brings a strong sales background, having generated approximately $400,000 in new revenue during his time with Great American Exteriors.

He earned a bachelor's degree in finance from the University of Kentucky, where he participated in the Real Estate Club and completed a commercial real estate workshop and pitch competition focused on investment analysis, valuation and deal structure.
